Baader Bank and finanzen.net zero extend cooperation agreement

Baader Bank and finanzen.net zero have extended the contract for their existing B2B2C cooperation by several years. The collaboration with the ZERO broker has been in place since 2019. The ZERO accounts and securities accounts are managed by Baader Bank.

"ZERO is one of the fastest growing and most popular online brokers. Our customers appreciate not only our fee-free trading but also the unique features of the ZERO platform, which have already brought us many testing wins. We will continue to expand the ZERO platform in the coming years in order to offer our customers a host of additional functionality, tools and options. Baader Bank is our most important partner in this work. We are therefore delighted that our collaboration with Baader Bank has already been extended to cover additional years", says Jens Ohr, Managing Director of finanzen.net zero GmbH.

The cooperation partnership in the account and trading business has been agreed for a period of several years. Baader Bank is thus consistently focusing on future growth with another important co-operation partner.

Private investors can use the ZERO broker to execute their securities orders, primarily via the gettex electronic trading platform and via Baader Bank's OTC trading venue. Several product enhancements have already been implemented as part of the existing cooperation partnership with finanzen.net zero — examples include the fact that it is now possible to trade a total of 33 cryptocurrencies via the joint setup or make use of a depositary credit.

"Our cooperation partnership with the management team at finanzen.net zero has been in place for more than five years now and is based on genuine trust and mutual appreciation. We are delighted that ZERO will remain an integral part of our platform into the future and that together we will continue our growth journey", says Oliver Riedel, Deputy CEO of Baader Bank AG.
